Screens for Teens, a Fall Film Program Offered by the Harvard Art Museums

Cambridge, MA
September 2, 2022

This fall, the Harvard Art Museums will offer a free film series called Screens for Teens, a series of contemporary and classic films specially curated for teenagers in and around Cambridge, Massachusetts. The selections include both short and feature-length films and will cover a range of topics, emotions, and nuances relevant to the experiences of teens. The films—depending on length and scope—will be followed by conversation with faculty from the Cambridge Rindge and Latin School. A total of seven screenings will be held, twice per month, on Sundays at 2pm.

The Screens for Teens series was organized by David Odo, director of academic and public programs at the Harvard Art Museums, and programmed by Karin Kolb, curator of youth and children's films at the Wisconsin Film Festival and former program coordinator at the Harvard Film Archive.

"We're delighted to have Karin's expertise as we welcome teenagers from just across the street and across Cambridge and greater Boston," said Odo. "The films' content reflects global, cultural, regional, and individual experiences of adolescence around the world, and we're thrilled that the connections might provide younger audiences an opportunity to gather and develop a critical lens. We hope for students and youth to leave feeling seen and emboldened and ask them to imagine how the museums can best serve them."

All screenings will be held in person at the Harvard Art Museums, 32 Quincy Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts. Click through the links below to view film descriptions and other details, and to make reservation arrangements for each screening. The museums' online reservation system will open up 10 days before the date of each screening. For updates, please see our online calendar: harvardartmuseums.org/calendar.

Admission to all Screens for Teens programs is free, but seating is limited and reservations are required. Screenings will take place in the museums' Menschel Hall, Lower Level. Doors will open at 1:30pm. Note: The Harvard Art Museums offer free admission to all on Sundays, so guests are welcome to visit the galleries beforehand or while their teen is attending the screening.

Please see the Visit section of the Harvard Art Museums website for information about general policies, parking, accessibility, and more: harvardartmuseums.org/visit. Questions? Call 617-495-9400.

The Harvard Art Museums are committed to accessibility for all visitors. For anyone requiring accessibility accommodations for our programs, please contact us at am\_register@harvard.edu at least 48 hours in advance.

About the Harvard Art Museums

The Harvard Art Museums house one of the largest and most renowned art collections in the United States, comprising three museums (the Fogg, Busch-Reisinger, and Arthur M. Sackler Museums) and four research centers (the Straus Center for Conservation and Technical Studies, the Center for the Technical Study of Modern Art, the Harvard Art Museums Archives, and the Archaeological Exploration of Sardis). The Fogg Museum includes Western art from the Middle Ages to the present; the Busch-Reisinger Museum, unique among North American museums, is dedicated to the study of all modes and periods of art from central and northern Europe, with an emphasis on German-speaking countries; and the Arthur M. Sackler Museum is focused on art from Asia, the Middle East, and the Mediterranean. Together, the collections include over 255,000 objects in all media.
